Special Services this month

3rd November 5.00 p.m. Woodnewton is hosting our Benefice All Souls' Service – a quiet, reflective service of thanksgiving to remember those we have known and loved who have died and whose memory continues to shape our lives. Do come to share this special time together.

10th November. Our Remembrance Sunday Service will begin at 10.50 for 10.55 a.m. so that we are able to begin our service with the national Two Minute Silence remembering those fallen in conflict, and by naming those from our village who died in the service of their country.

24th November. 6.00 p.m. Benefice Advent Evensong at Nassington Church. All welcome!

THANK YOU to everyone who brought gifts for our Harvest services – those who came to the services and those who left lovely gifts anonymously. Your generosity is much appreciated. The gifts were taken to our local foodbank.

A REMINDER: Thursday, 31st October – LIGHT PARTY in church. 5.30 – 6.30 p.m.

Activities, treasure hunt and refreshments! Come along for the whole session or just drop in.

Everyone welcome!

Just a reminder for those readers in the village that there is a book stall within the church on the 'bier'. In recent weeks, many new titles have appeared and I am sure that there is something to suit everybody's taste. Books are reasonably priced at 50p each or 3 books for a £1. All money goes to help keep the fabric of the church in good condition. The church is usually open between 10am and 4pm.

Should you have any fiction that you want to dispose of, please leave the books beside the bier, or email me to arrange collection. Thank you. Marilyn Jenner

Special Focus on Reducing Burglary and Vehicle Crime

Reducing the number of residential burglaries is one of Northamptonshire Police's priorities, and members of the county's Special Constabulary have been playing a key role following the launch of Operation Crooked. Since April, officers from Northampton, Wellingborough and East Northants have volunteered more than 1,400 hours to target those who are committing burglaries and vehicle crime in our communities.

More than 200 Specials from the three areas have carried out dedicated proactive patrols in the evening and at weekends, which has resulted in officers responding to 93 emergency incidents. In addition to this, the Specials have also made 12 arrests, carried out nine stop and searches, submitted intelligence reports, seized 15 vehicles and reported a further 17 traffic offences. As part of their activities, uniformed and plain-clothed officers have increased foot patrols in communities which have been hardest hit by burglary and vehicle crime offences.

Special Inspector Kevin Freeman of the Northampton district, said: "We have had a great response from members of the public, who have welcomed the additional patrols in their community. By dedicating our time to Operation Crooked, we have been able to respond to burglaries in progress, suspicious people hanging around or ANPR hits on vehicles linked to burglaries. It has also meant we have been able to support our colleagues in the Force to gather and build intelligence around those who are committing these offences."

Their hard work has not gone unnoticed, and Police, Fire & Crime Commissioner Stephen Mold, recently joined members of the Northampton Specials on patrol in the town.

Special Inspector Freeman added: "Operation Crooked has been a fantastic team effort by all the Specials from across the county. It is always great to receive recognition for our work and so we were delighted Stephen asked to join us."

Mr Mold said: "The public have told me clearly they want to see Northamptonshire Police robustly tackling burglary and other crime and there could not be a better example of how that is happening than the operation I joined. It was great to see everyone working together and I must thank every member of our Special Constabulary for the unique contribution they make to policing in Northamptonshire. Their enthusiasm and professionalism was humbling and I really enjoyed being part of their team."

Woodnewton History Group

It is now 9 months since our website: www.woodnewtonhistory.co.uk went live. There are now 132 pages on the site with a lot more in draft mode awaiting further research. This website is a work-in-progress and will take years to complete. Should you have information about what has taken place in the village over the last 100+ years, please email the History Group on Woodnewtonhistory@gmail.com. Also we are always interested in looking at house deeds etc., as we can glean so much information from these.

Take a look at the latest info on the home page and you will see a very interesting story about the Village Air Raid Warden and also a book about Monty's survival in a concentration camp and his fight to keep well and get home in World War II..

NINA ALVIS NEEDS 1927 -2019

It is with great sadness that I have to report that Nina died peacefully in her sleep last month. Nina and Jack moved to the village in 1987, and were the first residents of no 1 Meadowgate. Nina quickly fitted into village life and became a Parish Councillor in 1988 and served for around seven years on this council. Major work of the Parish Council from the time Nina joined was the instigation and completion of the new cemetery in 1991. (Nina is the first lady on the left of the picture). Nina also joined the fundraising committee for the building of the village hall and was very much involved in the first Clownfest that took place in 1990. I remember her and Jack weeding the whole of Orchard Lane as it was going to be used for the erection of stalls and closed to traffic. Once the hall opened in 1992, she became the first treasurer and for many years took on the responsibility of booking clerk.

After Jack died in 2006, Nina decided to leave the village and moved into a bungalow in Oundle. Here she stayed for many years, keeping herself occupied with working for charities in the town. It was the loss of Nina's eyesight that instigated her last move and this was to Abbott House, Oundle, in 2016.

Lost the Plot

Are podcasts the new radio?

Podcast is an odd word. It's an amalgam of iPod and broadcast and was apparently coined by the British journalist and author Ben Hammersley in 2004. Wikipedia defines it as follows:

"A podcast is an episodic series of digital audio (or video files) which a user can download in order to listen. Alternatively, the word "podcast" may refer to the individual component of such a series or to an individual media file."

At time of its inception you had to subscribe to a Podcast using a computer with software like iTunes and then it would be synchronised to your iPod so you could listen to it at your leisure. Today you can download them directly to your smart phone or even listen to them using your Alexa speaker (other virtual assistants are available). The BBC Sounds App allows you to listen to all the BBC produced podcasts but there are many other sources.

You can find podcasts on almost any subject by searching using your Podcast app or using a web browser. I am a fan of factual science podcasts, sport, motoring and comedy and listen to them on my iPad while I am dozing off to sleep at night. There are plenty of great UK originated podcasts but also some really good American podcasts. I have compiled a short list of a few of my favourites.

1. Death in Ice Valley (BBC) The true story of a unsolved murder that took place in Norway in the early 1970s. A BBC journalist and a colleague from the Norwegian national broadcaster investigate. Fascinating and very well produced.
2. 50 Things that made the modern economy (BBC) The FT's Undercover Economist Tim Harford presents a series of short podcasts about inventions, ideas and innovations that have helped make our modern life. It covers things as diverse as the S-bend, Radar, Plastic and Department Stores.
3. The Cut (BBC) This is a golf podcast, but don't let that put you off. Andrew Cotter and Ian Carter ramble on about golf and interview the odd golfer. Very restful.
4. S-Town (NPR). This American podcast is not for the faint of heart and includes some strong language. It's a fascinating and rambling story of the the real life characters in an obscure Alabama town.
5. Intrigue - The Ratline (BBC) Another true story podcast about high-ranking Nazis escaping justice after World War II. Intriguing is indeed the right word.
6. The Collecting Cars Podcast with Chris Harris. Purely for petrol-heads and introduced by short but talented Top Gear presenter. Car obsessed conversation freed of the strictures of the BBC hence much more opinionated and controversial.
7. No Such Thing as a Fish. A comedy panel show podcast which features 4 of the so-called QI Elves who compile questions and material for QI. Each week they pick 4 interesting and obscure facts that they have discovered and discuss them irreverently. Enlightening and amusing - mostly..

If you want some tips about how best to listen to podcasts on your phone, tablet or computer check out this article from the Guardian. woodnewtonhub.co.uk/podcasts or ask Alexa.
